Report of G. T. Purdy

August 27, 1926

Investigation of letter, signed MUNROE JACKSON
66 Park Avenue,
Hoboken, N.J.

Operative made an investigation at the above address in an effort to locate the person who wrote this letter, made a careful search at this address but could find no one by that name living in this house, or anyone that knew of such a person. Made inquiries around the neighborhood also.

Operative inquired at the Department of Health at Hoboken, for a search of the records of 1872 to 1875 in an effort to find a record of the birth of Mary Eisleitner. The record book containing the births for these years was turned over to me and I spent about two hours looking through them and could find no record of the birth of Mary Eisleitner.

Operative then interviewed Inspector Ciely of the Hoboken Police Department and he made a search of the records from 1884 to 1902 and could find nothing on the names of Mary Eisleitner or Janette Hilton or Easton.

Operative made an investigation at Gansberg Dance Hall which now is the Salvation Army Hall at 127 Washington Street. Made several inquiries but could find no one that knew a Mary Eisleitner. Also obtained the address of a daughter of Gansberg the man that operated the dance hall. She lives at 125 Hudson Street. I interviewed this woman but she could not remember such a woman, also mentioned the name of Janette Hilton to her but she never heard of that name either.

Operative could find no one in Hoboken that knew Mary Eisleitner
